advice on Benefits

Providing suitable benefits for internationally-based staff presents HR and benefit managers with a variety of difficult and sometimes complex situations.

These can include:

- benchmarking of benefits to local and international employment markets
- local regulation and legal requirements
- ensuring benefits match expatriate employee expectations without creating a 'them and us' situation with locally employed staff
- managing benefits across multiple global locations with their added language, currency and cultural complications
- understanding local terminology

Whether you have employees working remotely from the UK or you have a group of UK-based employees working remotely from your international location, it is important your employees are engaged with your business.

From mirroring global reward strategy to ensuring employers meet UK legislation, we can assist you in providing the right benefit cover for you and your employees.

We have a dedicated team within the group with specific experience and expertise in advising employers on international benefits.
