Pension schemes

Pensions are still one of the most tax-efficient methods of investing for the future, and automatic enrolment requires all employers to enrol eligible employees into a qualifying workplace pension scheme.

At Mattioli Woods, we focus on scheme design, including automatic enrolment compliance, investment options and member communications. We know it's not always a case of one-size-fits-all when it comes to workplace pension arrangements, and employers may offer different solutions depending on their organisation's requirements. That's why we will work with you to make sure you have the solutions that work for your employees.

We will also consider factors such as retirement options for your workforce and – where possible – consolidation (including legacy schemes and private pensions).

The Mattioli Woods team can also help steer employers through the interaction pension legislation has with employment legislation.

With pension savings being such a valuable benefit to your employees, we can help you establish and maintain pension scheme governance, ensuring good member outcomes are at the forefront of the decisions you make surrounding your pension offering.

We look forward to working with you to ensure you have the right pension provision in place for your employees, helping them plan for the future.
