

FP MATTIOLI WOODS CAUTIOUS

FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

MARKET REVIEW

A particularly poor month for global equity markets as they faced the prospect of monetary tightening via higher interest rates to combat rampant inflation, just as economic momentum begins to slow. In previous months we have discussed the unenviable challenge facing major central banks as they withdraw the extraordinary economic support packages of the pandemic. Engineering the fabled 'soft-landing', where interest rate rises suppress inflation without creating a recession, certainly requires a deft touch and clear messaging from central bankers. This month, equity markets took the view this task may prove rather difficult. Bond markets proved similarly negative as interest rate rises were priced into bond yields – this impacted both government and corporate bonds, with the latter further affected by overall 'risk-off' sentiment. A move higher in corporate bonds spreads, essentially the premium over a government bond to compensate for the increased risk of lending to a company, was a further indication of tighter financial conditions. Allied to this is the continuing supply-chain impact from China's zero-Covid policy and some uninspiring results from the large technology companies that have propelled equity market returns in recent years. The war in Ukraine continues to drive energy and agricultural prices higher and with Russia seemingly refocusing their efforts on the south-eastern region of Ukraine, the likelihood of a resolution appears sadly distant. Inflationary pressures appear embedded and employment markets remain hot. That said, as consumers become more discerning in response to higher prices, central banks will be hoping demand cools sufficiently to offset some of those price pressures.

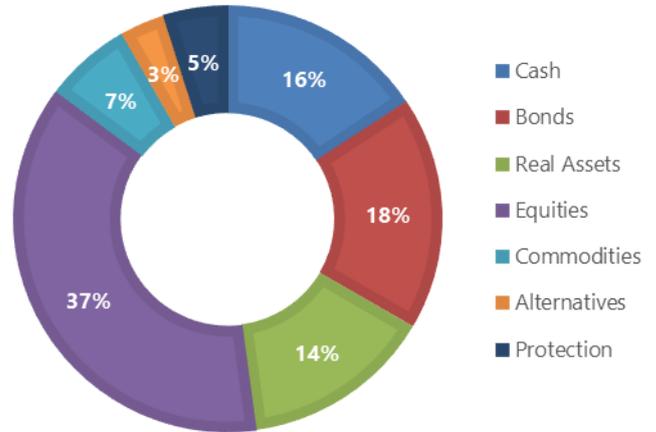

FUND REVIEW

Though the Fund ended the month negatively, it did provide cushion against the more extended fall seen in the benchmark. This continues a run of outperformance, resulting in a one-year figure, displaying notable outperformance of the benchmark that represents the average return of our peer group. As global equity markets suffered a torrid month, our well-sized holding in gold proved its worth once again, continuing the solid performance seen through the first quarter. As both an inflation hedge and a risk-off asset, 2022 has proved supportive so far for gold. Beyond this, there were few bright spots; our infrastructure holdings provided a positive contribution as did our holding in the Lazard Rathmore Alternative Fund, which is held to provide a diversified source of return in uncertain markets and has delivered positively since introduction.

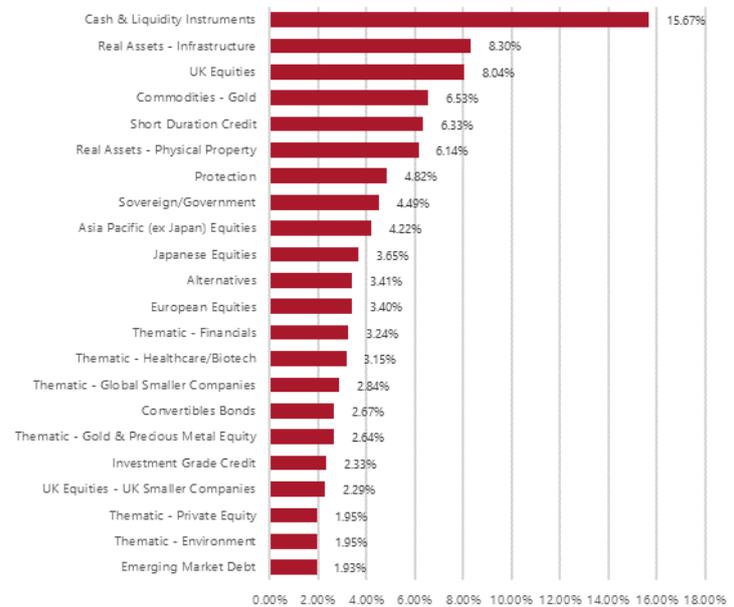

ACTIVITY

There were no changes to asset allocation this month and overall activity in the Fund was muted. As noted in previous months, we remain happy with positioning and through a period of heightened uncertainty have refrained from any unnecessary activity. The only change made during the month was a slight repositioning of our European equity exposure. Here we introduced a new holding in the BlackRock Continental European Income Fund, to sit alongside our existing position in the Premier Miton European Opportunities Fund. The BlackRock fund provides exposure to quality dividend-paying stocks in sectors such as consumer staples, which should prove complementary to the more growth-orientated Premier Miton fund.

RISK WARNINGS

- Past performance is not a guide to future returns.
- The value of investments and the income from them can fall as well as rise, and you may not get back the amount invested.
- For funds investing globally, currency exchange rate fluctuations may have a positive or negative impact on the value of your investments.
- Changes in interest rates will affect the value of, and the interest earned from, bonds held by the Fund. When interest rates rise, the capital value of the Fund is likely to fall and vice versa.
- Investment trusts can borrow money that can then be used to make further investments. In a rising market, this 'gearing' can enhance returns to shareholders. However, if the market falls, losses will be multiplied.
- The Fund does not use derivatives extensively, although it may use them in an attempt to reduce risk, reduce costs and to generate additional income. Investing in derivatives carries the risk of reduced liquidity, substantial loss and increased volatility in adverse market conditions. Derivatives may expose the Fund to credit risks of counterparties, who may not meet payment obligations. The use of derivatives may result in the Fund being leveraged (where economic exposure and thus the potential for loss by the Fund exceeds the amount it has invested), and in these market conditions the effect of leverage will magnify losses.
