

FP MATTIOLI WOODS CAUTIOUS

FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

MARKET REVIEW

After falling significantly through the first half of the month, equity prices did stabilise through the second half – however, this was not sufficient to recover those earlier falls, resulting in a notable drawdown for the month. Much of the sell-off was attributable to continued inflationary concern following an above-forecast US inflation print that led to a 0.75% interest rate rise by the US Federal Reserve – in contrast to the 0.50% financial markets had priced in. With major central banks looking to aggressively raise rates into what is likely to prove a challenging economic environment, particularly for the under-pressure consumer, financial markets are now pricing-in an increased possibility of recession. This was visible in commodities markets, a traditionally cyclical indicator of economic conditions, which sold-off this month following outperformance in the sector year-to-date. Copper is often viewed as a leading indicator of economic conditions, due to its use across multiple industries, so a double-digit sell-off in June seemingly reflects a view that global demand is likely to fall notably as conditions worsen. One trend seen persistently this year is a weakening of sterling – not ideal for a country heavily dependent on import activity but beneficial for unhedged sterling investors who have suffered nowhere near the same level of drawdown that a US dollar-based equity investor has experienced. This trend was amplified in June, sterling once again weakening against the greenback due to a poorly received rate rise of only 0.25% from the Bank of England. Though we might not be facing the same level of equity market falls on a currency basis, we are certainly feeling weaker sterling at the fuel pumps.

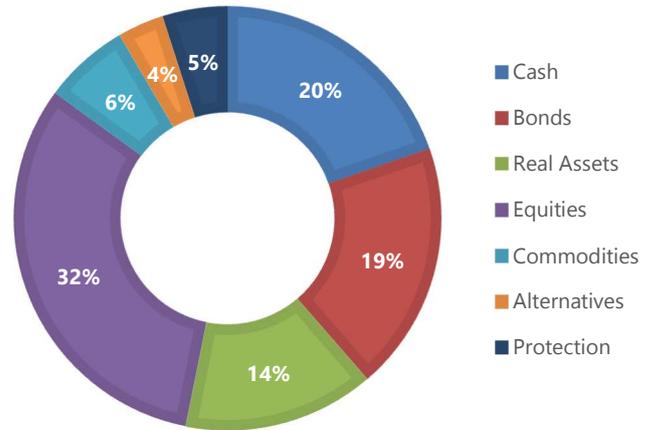

FUND REVIEW

The Fund did not avoid the drawdown seen across financial markets this month. However, it did provide some cushion against the fall suffered by the benchmark that represents the average return of our peer group. The Fund has mitigated much of the volatility seen over the past year. Relative outperformance of the benchmark this month reflects our more cautious approach, namely a lowered equity exposure and higher cash weighting. We are aware inflation is unkind to cash, but it is to all asset classes and not falling in nominal terms is proving an attractive characteristic. There will come a point when many of the headwinds currently buffeting risk assets dissipate. Having cash on the sidelines enables us to take advantage of changing conditions as they arise. Gold performed well for us this month, a function of weaker sterling rather than the US dollar price of gold itself rising. Additionally, there was a positive contribution from the Lazard Rathmore fund held in our alternatives allocation. Asian equity returns were helpful but elsewhere there was little to cheer as risk assets slipped.

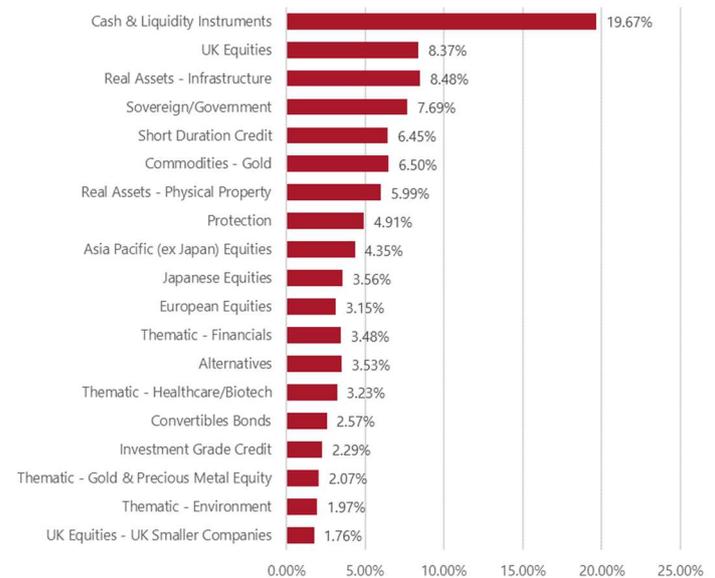

ACTIVITY

There was no activity within the Fund this month. Through a volatile period for financial markets, we have avoided any unnecessary activity. Changes to asset allocation in recent months have placed the Fund into what we see as the most favourable position for current conditions.

RISK WARNINGS

- Past performance is not a guide to future returns.
- The value of investments and the income from them can fall as well as rise, and you may not get back the amount invested.
- For funds investing globally, currency exchange rate fluctuations may have a positive or negative impact on the value of your investments.
- Changes in interest rates will affect the value of, and the interest earned from, bonds held by the Fund. When interest rates rise, the capital value of the Fund is likely to fall and vice versa.
- Investment trusts can borrow money that can then be used to make further investments. In a rising market, this 'gearing' can enhance returns to shareholders. However, if the market falls, losses will be multiplied.
- The Fund does not use derivatives extensively, although it may use them in an attempt to reduce risk, reduce costs and to generate additional income. Investing in derivatives carries the risk of reduced liquidity, substantial loss and increased volatility in adverse market conditions. Derivatives may expose the Fund to credit risks of counterparties, who may not meet payment obligations. The use of derivatives may result in the Fund being leveraged (where economic exposure and thus the potential for loss by the Fund exceeds the amount it has invested), and in these market conditions the effect of leverage will magnify losses.

A list of risk factors is detailed in the Simplified Prospectus, and an investment should not be contemplated until the risks are considered fully. Current tax levels and relief are liable to change, and their value will depend on individual investors' circumstances.
