

FP MATTIOLI WOODS GROWTH

FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

MARKET REVIEW

Following what had been a bright start to the year, inflationary clouds rolled in once more to dampen spirits. Through January, the prevailing view was central banks had sufficiently tightened monetary policy, via a raising of interest rates, to stem inflation. The hard work was near complete and financial markets expected a couple more well-telegraphed rate rises in the US before peak rates were reached. That view came crashing down in February. Though inflation is indeed slowing (predominantly goods inflation), rising prices in the service sector are proving harder to control. Consequently, the January US consumer price inflation (CPI) reading came in ahead of forecast. When allied to a strong labour market report and solid retail sales data, financial markets swiftly priced in a later peak in US interest rates and a likelihood of rates being held higher for longer. This re-evaluation of future rate expectations triggered a sell-off across most equity regions and resulted in bond yields moving sharply upwards, with bond prices falling in response. The strength of the US economy through this environment of higher rates is proving a puzzling aspect for the country's policymakers. It seems likely the lagged effect of monetary tightening to date is still to be realised. While it could be argued the Federal Reserve (and several other central banks) were initially slow to respond to surging inflation, rates were subsequently raised swiftly, and being more aggressive now, without sight of the impact, may create deeper problems.

FUND REVIEW

The Fund underperformed its benchmark slightly this month, which is disappointing considering we are positioned more cautiously than peers. Though we provided mitigation against falls in the equity space, via a lower equity weighting than many peers, we were exposed to a falling gold price through our holding of Jupiter Gold & Silver. Additionally, exposure to both Asian and emerging market equities was detrimental as these regions underwent larger falls than many global peers – much of the drop in the region due to rising geopolitical tensions between China and the US, which counteracted the positivity of China's post-Covid reopening. UK and European equities held-up significantly better; a mild winter combined with strong labour markets is supporting positive consumer behaviours across Europe, while the nature of many European stock markets mean they are skewed towards the beneficiaries of rising interest rates. Elsewhere, several of our thematic positions (such as global smaller companies and insurance) managed to eke out small positive contributions. Unfortunately, these were not sufficient to offset the falls seen broadly across many equity sectors.

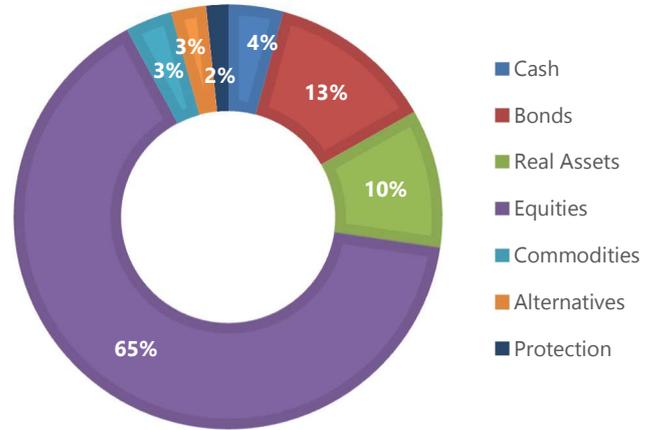

ACTIVITY

We made an asset allocation change this month to exit our position in convertible bonds, with a corresponding increase in investment grade bonds. With convertible bonds offering no yield and a difficult period ahead for many of the companies that issue these bonds, the higher quality and attractive yield on offer from investment grade bonds is more appealing. As a result, we sold our entire holding in Jupiter Global Convertibles and added to our position in Rathbone Ethical Bond. We are managing our interest rate sensitivity by complementing the Rathbone fund with a holding in L&G Short Dated Corporate Bond Index where duration (broadly, how sensitive a bond's price is to changes in interest rate) is around half that of standard investment grade indices, allowing us to mitigate overall interest rate risk. Elsewhere, we trimmed exposure to Polar Capital Global Insurance, taking profit after a strong 12 months, with the proceeds used to top-up our holdings in both HG Capital Trust and ICG Enterprise Trust – we see opportunity in the disparity between the price of both trusts and the value of their underlying assets. Finally, we exited a small residual position held in Picton Property Income and reinvested the proceeds in the Mattioli Woods Property Securities Fund.

RISK WARNINGS

- Past performance is not a guide to future returns.
- The value of investments and the income from them can fall as well as rise, and you may not get back the amount invested.
- For funds investing globally, currency exchange rate fluctuations may have a positive or negative impact on the value of your investments.
- Changes in interest rates will affect the value of, and the interest earned from, bonds held by the Fund. When interest rates rise, the capital value of the Fund is likely to fall and vice versa.
- Investment trusts can borrow money that can then be used to make further investments. In a rising market, this 'gearing' can enhance returns to shareholders. However, if the market falls, losses will be multiplied.
- The Fund does not use derivatives extensively, although it may use them in an attempt to reduce risk, reduce costs and to generate additional income. Investing in derivatives carries the risk of reduced liquidity, substantial loss and increased volatility in adverse market conditions. Derivatives may expose the Fund to credit risks of counterparties, who may not meet payment obligations. The use of derivatives may result in the Fund being leveraged (where economic exposure and thus the potential for loss by the Fund exceeds the amount it has invested), and in these market conditions the effect of leverage will magnify losses.

A list of risk factors is detailed in the Simplified Prospectus, and an investment should not be contemplated until the risks are considered fully. Current tax levels and relief are liable to change, and their value will depend on individual investors' circumstances.
