FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

MARKET REVIEW

Continuing the premise that emerged in September, most assets underwent falls this month as investors priced the impact of interest rates being held at current levels further into 2024. Further, some markets were buffeted by events in the Middle East where the Israel-Hamas conflict resulted in investors shedding certain stocks and bonds for other 'safe haven' assets. The main causes of higher-for-longer rates have been discussed before, but broadly are a resilient US economy and persistently elevated inflation. The US economy, which is being supported by strong consumer activity, delivered an impressive 4.9% annualised growth in Q3, well above expectation and much higher than the 2.1% growth seen during Q2. Additionally, US consumer price inflation remained static for the month of September, registering the same 3.7% year-on-year rate seen in August. With US Federal Reserve chair Jerome Powell reiterating the central bank's commitment to returning inflation to the 2% target level, financial markets reshaped the timeline for potential interest rate cuts, pushing them further out. Longer maturity bonds were most detrimentally impacted; here we are seeing both the impact of strong economic growth and a market insisting on a larger premium to lend to heavily indebted governments for longer periods. This story of market demand and increased issuance in the sovereign bond space has further to run, and we expect to see more volatility here as the 2024 UK and US elections move into view.

FUND REVIEW

While the Fund delivered a negative return over the month, on a relative basis it fell markedly less than our benchmark, which represents the average of our peer group. Similar to September, our deliberately cautious equity positioning provided mitigation during a month where most equity areas suffered, as continually stubborn US inflation reinforced the higher-for-longer rates narrative. Further, our physical gold position provided a positive contribution as the Middle East conflict resulted in demand for safe haven assets. Beyond this, there were few positive contributors. Cash was one, however, proving its worth as a useful asset, providing both a source of income and capital preservation. Global insurance equities were a rare positive in the equity space, a position that is working extremely well as earnings in the sector rebound. Assets detrimentally impacted by rising bond yields, including our US Treasury position and smaller companies equity, were among the largest detractors on higher-for-longer concern. Broader UK equities also detracted in response to the Bank of England's downbeat UK economic forecast.

ACTIVITY

There were no asset allocation changes this month and activity was focused solely on the investment of inflows.

RISK WARNINGS

- Past performance is not a guide to future returns.
- The value of investments and the income from them can fall as well as rise, and you may not get back the amount invested.
- For funds investing globally, currency exchange rate fluctuations may have a positive or negative impact on the value of your investments.
- Changes in interest rates will affect the value of, and the interest earned from, bonds held by the Fund. When interest rates rise, the capital value of the Fund is likely to fall and vice versa.
- The Fund does not use derivatives extensively, although it may use them in an attempt to reduce risk, reduce costs and to generate additional income. Investing in derivatives carries the risk of reduced liquidity, substantial loss and increased volatility in adverse market conditions. Derivatives may expose the Fund to credit risks of counterparties, who may not meet payment obligations. The use of derivatives may result in the Fund being leveraged (where economic exposure and thus the potential for loss by the Fund exceeds the amount it has invested), and in these market conditions the effect of leverage will magnify losses.
